

Parenting Goals

Raising a child is one of the most important things you'll ever do. When children are young, it's very common for parents to focus on what happens day-to-day. However, parenting is not a sprint—it's a long-distance run. Take a few minutes to think about your long-term goals for you and your child.

Long-term goals

What kind of person do you hope your	child will grow up to be? What qi	ualities and characteristics do you ho	pe to see when your child is an adult?

What kind of relationship do you want to have with your child when they're an adult?

What kind of a parent do you want to be—today and when your child is grown?

If you parent with someone else, ask about their goals. How will you work together?

When you have an idea of what you wish to achieve, list a few things you can do to help get you there.

© 2023, Alberta Health Services, Promoting Health

This material is intended for general information only and is provided on an "as is", "where is" basis. Although reasonable efforts were made to confirm the accuracy of the information, Alberta Health Services does not make any representation or warranty, express, implied or statutory, as to the accuracy, reliability, completeness, applicability or fitness for a particular purpose of such information. This material is not a substitute for the advice of a qualified health professional. Alberta Health Services expressly disclaims all liability for the use of these materials, and for any claims, actions, demands or suits arising from such use.